

See our materiel and small arms here.

Landsverk 120 (L-120) in Norwegian Service "Rikstanken". Even into the 1930s, Norway was not one of the more industrially advanced countries in Europe. As such, Norway was a relative latecomer to the ...

Designed by Norwegian company Jerven in 1982, the Jervenduk ("Wolverine Cloth") is a multipurpose cold-weather accessory designed specifically for the Norwegian geography and climate.

This page looks at the history of Norwegian armor, starting in 1937 with the Landsverk L-120 "Rikstanken", up to the modern Leopard 2A4NO.

Given Norway's very cold climate, the new uniform also includes warm clothing for winter environments. Just this week, ...

This is also a prewar model that were manufactured for the norwegian exile army. The battle dress was used as a field uniform in Norway well into the 60's, and as service uniform in the 70's.

This is also a prewar model that were manufactured for the norwegian exile army. The battle dress was used as a field ...

Compared to the old uniform, it provides more protection, higher comfort, and better functionality. The combat jacket is made of flame-retardant fabric. The detachable hood has multiple ...

This is a list of equipment of the Norwegian Army currently in service and on order. Note: This list is indicative only, as strict comparisons cannot accurately be made.

Category: Cold War Norwegian Armor Stridsvogn M24 (M24 Chaffee in Norwegian Service) Stridsvogn & Stormkanon KW-III (Panzer III & StuG III in Norwegian Service) NM-130 Bergepanser

Given Norway's very cold climate, the new uniform also includes warm clothing for winter environments. Just this week, Forsvaret began distributing the new uniform to soldiers deployed in ...

Web: <https://cgaroofing.co.za>